

7th ANTONIO SMAREGLIA
INTERNATIONAL COMPOSITION COMPETITION

Artistic Director: Flavia Brunetto

Antonio Smareglia (Pola 1854 – Grado 1929) was one of the most important composers of Central Europe. As a young man, he was to frequent the musical circles of Vienna and Milan's Scapigliatura movement, and these influences are evident in his compositions, which embrace German-Danubian stylistic features, Slavic touches and the best of Italian lyricism. His most important compositions include Il vassallo di Szigeth (Vienna, 1889), Nozze Istriane (Trieste, 1895), La Falena (Venice, 1897), Oceana (Milan, 1903), Abisso (Milan, 1914), and Pittori Fiamminghi (Trieste, 1928). His works have been performed in the world's leading theatres (La Scala - Milan, Metropolitan - New York, Prague, Dresden, Vienna, Zagreb, Pola and Trieste), and directed by such great maestros as Toscanini, Richter and Gavazzeni. He was admired by the greatest musicians and musicologists of his day, including Johannes Brahms and Eduard Hanslick. He was also a celebrated composer of piano music and lyrical works for voice and piano.

2. The Competition is divided into three sections as follows:

Section A: compositions for solo piano of between 5 and 10 minutes.

Section B: compositions for solo voice and piano of between 3 and 6 minutes.

For section B, the choice of text is at the discretion of the composer, provided that:

- the text has been published (or translated) in one of the following languages: Italian, French, English, Spanish or German;
- the text is in the public domain, or the composer has requested and obtained the author's and/or translator's explicit permission to use the text (or the permission of his/her legal heirs and/or legal representatives, see § 7)

Section C: compositions for solo voice and piano of between 3 and 6 minutes, with a text in Friulan language. The composer will be able chose freely the text, as long as it is in the public domain, or the composer has requested and obtained the author's explicit permission to use the text (or the permis- sion of his/her legal heirs and/or legal representatives, see § 7). It will be possible to find a selection of texts on the website www.filologicafriulana.it, through the page dedicated to the competition.

The Società Filologica Friulana, patronage of the competition, can provide an additional selection of texts in Friulan language with a possible translation in Italian, German or English, and also audio files with reading of the texts themselves (contact to biblioteca@filologicafriulana.it).

For neither section will the use of electro-acoustic equipment be permitted. Only ‘Prepared piano’ techniques may be used.

3. The competition is open to participants of every nationality and there are no age restrictions applied. The works presented must be unpublished, never performed, never awarded nor rewarded or reported in other competitions, nor be found in any way or in any form (neither on the web, nor on physical media, nor on LP, nor on CD etc.).

4. The Jury Commission (five members) will consist of eminent musicians of international acclaim and a representative of the Artistic Director of the Casa Musicale Sonzogno of Milan.
